Risks

What risks can you identify for your project?

One of the risks in our project could be not having enough time to finish everything in our project. Things such as translation could take a while to do and might not finish it by the finish date. However, we could always push that back and put translation as an up-date later on. We would also translate the video subtitles first and the guide prints out first as google translate can translate the whole website and in our quiz at the start when we ask which language it will autumnally change to that language using google translate. Similarly, how long the video will take to make. If we do not plan the right amount of time to create the videos, they might not be finished in time for the dead line. Another risk could be usability, in during the project we will test our project however, there can always be errors we did not pick up on and could set us back on time. Although, to make sure there are not huge errors we will have testing throughout the process.
